MANIPULATION OF PRICES MOVEMENT UP OR DOWN AS DE- SIRED BY THE COMBINATION.

New York, May 20.—The violent and feverish action of today's stock market served to confuse greatly the views of the speculative element, and in consequence served to intensify the less powerful class of operators, who saw prices moving in mercurial fashion, apparently at the will of hidden forces whose action could not be followed and whose motives could not be fathomed. The operators of powerful resources were using violent manipulative measures to effect the wide and sudden fluctuations in prices, was patent even to superficial observation. The constant contrast in these movements might leave open a hypothesis of artificial support for the purpose of selling, or realize profits or of sudden withdrawal of support and forcing back of prices to make off the week following which has trailed on to the speculative movement of the more powerful bull party.

With the growing interest of the outside speculative element, made up of individuals of smaller resources than those who undertake to inaugurate a speculative campaign, the bull position has grown increasingly vulnerable. The number of buyers on margin unable to hold through the considerable decline has grown. Moreover, the extent of the advance has been a split of caution which makes the holder of stocks on margin quickly retreat and throw over his holdings on any sign of weakness. As a safeguard of their position, speculators have been placing stop-loss orders at a certain price slightly below the market. With the market now combined with such orders, such sudden releases as those late yesterday and mid-day of today's session become likely.

The early part of the day was given over to a laborious repair process of the roads on prices effected yesterday and early today. The sensational advance in Missouri Pacific and the response by sympathy of the whole Gould group was the effective medium for supporting prices. With this attempt, the business reaction of the whole Gould group was the effective medium for supporting prices. With this attempt, the business reaction of the whole Gould group was the effective medium for supporting prices.
